Athol Historical Society's museum houses hundreds of objects from the past, among them opalescent glass curtain pulls dating to the late nineteenth century.

Of course now, in the early twenty-first century, the lovely glass objects do not have to serve their original purpose: instead, they might decorate a festive summer table.

The collection also includes memorabilia from all facets of Athol's past days.

Do be sure to take time to browse in the museum when you visit Athol Historical Society.
